

IRANIAN WOMEN ARE UNVEILING THE ISLAMIC REGIME

“I am a teacher. I have come here to teach my students that you must demand for your rights.”

After 43 years of repression, the courageous women of Iran, young and old, religious and secular, are showing the world that the time has come to control their own future.

For decades, the regime managed discontent through “elections” that offered the promise of reform.

As part of “Engineered Elections” and in order to relieve pressure building in the society, three times so called “Moderates/Reformists” were “elected.” They promised reforms, personal freedoms, human rights, and to stop the abuses by the security & intelligence forces.

None of these “promises” became reality. Here is why.

- 1- These “Moderates” were themselves seasoned, dedicated revolutionaries who were committed to the Islamic Republic’s system.
- 2- For 24 years these “Reformists” occupied Iran’s Presidential office and accomplished zero. They provided lip service, blamed the conservatives, defended the system, and played their role very well. Their role was to buy time for the regime. By the way, all three “Reformists” were clergies dedicated to the preservation of the Islamic Republic system, and were supervised by a non-elected Supreme Leader.
- 3- The system or regime they believe in is led by a non-elected person who, according to the Islamic Republic constitution, is “God’s representative on earth” until Mahdi (Messiah-the promised one) arrives. This Supreme Leader is in charge of all policies, all armed forces, all security and intelligence forces, and has to approve the “elected” president’s election (albeit an engineered one!) and can dismiss the president.

This is a powerful and brutal parallel system that Iranians are objecting to, and are demanding a regime change. Not modifying it, not reforming it, but entirely replacing it with a government of their choosing that is both democratic and secular.

It is ironic that the Iranian women are leading the uprising against the Regime that was started by the Morality Police because a 22-year-old women’s veil was not properly worn.

As it is said, all justices are dealt in this world, and the Iranian women are in fact unveiling the regime in Iran.
